

ANDANTE

markeliņe

After a high tide,
the sea washed up stories that had to be told.

That is why the street
appeared covered in sand and shoes.

Passers-by asked in amazement;
how did they get here? Whose are they?
What can they tell us?

Three actors with a cart and a musician
move along the street picking up the shoes
they find on the ground and tell their stories.

The magic of theatre
transforms the shoes into the protagonists of stories
that reflect the chiaroscuro of the human condition.

Shoes that dance, emigrate, fall in love,
live and die at the hands of their executioners.

"Andante" is a theatre of masks that narrates,
in a poetic manner, without words but with a wonderful sense of humour, stories that should not be forgotten.
Stories about anonymous shoes in wartime.
Shoes that could be ours.
